FOREWORD

"Dear Young Person! In every person's life there are different stages and here you are at point of transition, from one stage to another. Everything you will succeed in tomorrow depends on the decisions you make today. Even if things are not easy and you encounter difficulties, never give up on your dreams. Remember that there are people who can help you and you are not alone. Learn, work, and persevere, that's the only way you will succeed! We wish you success and patience, confidence and will, strength and reasoning. Everything that will follow will be new, will be different, there will be experiences, both good and bad - learn from them and continue on your path!"

The paragraph above is a message from young people who are already living an independent life after leaving care services. Based on their lived experiences they suggested it would be useful to put together information and advice on some of the most important areas of daily life, such as: Where to continue my studies? What profession should I embrace? How do I choose a job? Who should I contact for help? Who could listen to me and give me advice? How do I allocate my money correctly and plan my expenses? ...

These are just some of the questions that every teenager, young person, and even adult ask themselves nearly every day. The answers are not always obvious and there are no universal solutions or answers that would provide the same results for everyone. There are however sources of knowledge and information that we can use to help us achieve our goals.

This Guide was developed within the Changing the Way We Care^{SM 1} Initiative and is the result of the work of a group of young people, supported by the Lumos Moldova team. The information in this Guide will help you find answers to most of the questions that bother you and will help you find What? How? and Who? can help you in life!

¹ Changing the Way We CareSM is a global initiative aimed at ending the institutional childcare culture by promoting care in the family or family-type services for every child.

WHAT IS PARTICIPATION AND HOW WE GET INVOLVED?

Every young person can and is encouraged to make their voice heard and express their opinion in all aspects of life, in the family/ service in which they are placed, in the educational institution, at work, both locally and nationally.

Young people in the Republic of Moldova have many opportunities to participate in public life, with the process being supported and encouraged by central and local public authorities. Knowledge of a foreign language, especially English does expand your opportunities, regardless of gender, status, background, etc.

If you want to participate in public life, find out what opportunities you have locally. If you are active and persistent, you will be able to generate changes not only at local, but also at national and international levels.

The most well-known participation structures are:

The Students' Council – a self-governing structure of students involved in identifying and solving the problems they face at the educational institution. Such councils exist at 3 levels:

- The Students' Council (SC) of the educational institution where you study. Usually, the selection process of councillors is announced at the end or beginning of the school year. Follow the school notice board;
- The National Students' Council (NSC) a self-governing group of students selected from pre-university education institutions from across the country. The selection of new members of the NSC is announced by the Ministry of Education, Culture and Research (MECR) every spring.

 The National Council of Students from Technical Vocational Education (NCSTVE) – a self-governing group consisting of students selected from vocational schools and centres of excellence in the country.

For more information on these governance bodies, access the MECR website, the Education section. https://mecc.gov.md/ro/content/consiliul-national-al-elevilor-1

The Youth Council - a structure to represent, consult and empower young people to ensure their participation in community development, especially in decision-making. These councils exist at different levels, carrying out their activity in various forms:

- The Local (in the village or town where you live)/District/Municipal Youth Council - a structure created at local level. This Council is recognized by the decision of Local Public Authorities (Local administration/District or Municipal Council);
- The National Network of Local Youth Councils of Moldova.

WHAT IS LEISURE TIME AND HOW TO SPEND IT?

Leisure time is the time you have outside of school/work hours. On average, every young person has between 4-6 hours of free time per day. How do you spend this time?

Here are some suggestions:

- Develop your hobbies, so you will develop your skills in various fields: writing, music, dance, film, photography, drawing, etc.
- Participate in the activities where you study, which are outside the school program, so you will get to know more people and discover new things about yourself and your potential.

- Get involved in volunteering and insist on obtaining a volunteer card. Volunteering can be recognized as an internship and/or as experience and seniority in work (Law no.121 of 18.06.2010. on Volunteering).
- Read daily, especially non-fiction literature. Reading reduces stress, improves your ability to focus and your memory, and enriches your vocabulary. Read - it's free!
- Communicate and engage in fun activities with friends and people close to you.
- Learn new things, take specialization courses, participate in online and offline training - invest in yourself every day!
- Practice physical exercise. It will help you emotionally, mentally, physically and socially.
- Interact and socialize more with the outside world and spend less time on gadgets.

HOW TO MANAGE PERSONAL FINANCES?

To learn how to manage money correctly, we must start by setting up a personal budget. Any budget, regardless of size, contains 2 basic components: income and expenses.

Income (money coming in):

- Social benefits:
- Scholarship;
- Payments for occasional work;
- · Pocket money from parents;
- · Salary;
- International transfers (from parents, relatives, friends);
- Interest/dividends from deposits and investments.

Expenses (money going out):

Personal budget planning specialists often talk about the 50/30/20 rule as one of the simplest and most beneficial rules for managing personal finances. It is important to have a steady income every month (its amount may vary but be steady). According to this rule:

Up to 50% of expenses goes to Needs (essential expenses):

- Housing: rent/bank interest, insurance, utilities;
- · Food and medicine;
- Transport: personal (if your income allows) or public transport;
- Other debts, if failure to pay them will generate even higher expenses later.

Up to 30% goes to Wants (non-essential expenses):

- Clothes (included here because they are not necessary expenses each month)
- · subscriptions to sports clubs;
- · going out;
- · entertainment;
- cinema visits;
- · extra subscription for smartphone;
- · vacations;
- other expenses that are not crucially necessary, but you can afford them

Be realistic when planning your budget. Set your financial goals (e.g. to create an emergency fund by a certain date; to get rid of debts; to afford to go on vacation at least twice a year; etc.). Try NOT to spend more than you can afford.

Up to 20% goes to Savings:

- Creating a fund for emergencies (usually you should work towards it equalling the amount of 6 salaries/monthly incomes, but it is better for it to be of at least 9 salaries);
- · Deposits in the deposit/savings account;
- Investments (financial placements that generate additional income)

If needed you can supplement your income/cover our expenses relatively simple and fast way. The bestknown means is the loan (credit), which can be taken from financial institutions (commercial hanks microcredit companies), commercial units (household stores), pawnshops, but also from individuals (relatives, friends, etc.). Like anything else in life, accessing loans offers benefits, but it also carries risks and is not always advised. We shall further refer to consumer loans (for the purchase of consumer goods) offered by financial institutions, which are becoming increasingly popular.

According to the law, the person has 15 days to thoroughly examine each provision of the credit agreement and analyse the offers on the market. Pay attention to the total cost of the loan - the actual annual percentage rate. Creditors separate the elements of the loan's cost: interest, granting fee, monthly management fee and other fees related to the credit agreement. In this way, an announced interest rate of 10% per year could actually be much higher.

Benefits:

- Plenty of loan options (banks, microcredit companies, commercial units);
- Fast approval/rejection procedure (even online);
- · Equal/constant monthly payments;
- Convenient payment period established jointly with the creditor;

Risks:

- · High interest;
- · Hidden fees;
- Overpayment for the purchased product;
- Loss of income and higher debt as a result of failure to timely pay monthly instalments.

Before applying for a loan, get yourself informed! Consult a specialist or trusted person! Let a competent adult accompany you when talking to representatives of credit institutions! Only take a loan from an accredited or trusted source.

You can find plenty of information about money management both online and offline. Here are just a few sources that can give you answers to many questions about this aspect of independent living:
